

Saba Dutch Caribbean

The Unspoiled Queen of the Caribbean

Saba proudly declares itself “The Unspoiled Queen.” The best way to describe this unique island with less than 2000 people is to list the “have nots.” Saba has no crime, no high rises, no traffic or traffic lights, no pesky insects, no crowds, no fast food restaurants, no casinos, no cruise ships. Instead, Saba embodies the old Caribbean: safe, friendly and charming, with exquisite natural beauty both above and below the waterline. There’s hiking, an art scene (jewelry, lace making and glass bead workshop), boutique shopping and fine dining.

But we are going to Saba for the diving! Saba plunges below the sea as steeply as it rises above. From shallow patch reefs to deep underwater seamounts, the Unspoiled Queen offers sites suitable for any diver’s level of experience. We’ll see schools of tropical fish, healthy coral and sharks!

We’ll be staying at Juliana’s, a charming hotel, that is situated on a hillside in the village of Windwardside with breathtaking ocean views. Cooling trade winds make the evenings and nights very comfortable. Get ready for a visit to a charming island that still offers that old Caribbean charm.
